2. Consideration: The exchange of something of value (money, goods, services, etc.).
3. Capacity to Contract: All parties involved must have the legal capacity to enter into a contract.

This Affidavit of Power of Attorney serves as an acknowledgment that the undersigned, by the act of executing this affidavit, is entering into a lawful and binding contract under Common Law and Constitutional Law. The terms and conditions set forth in this Affidavit and all related agreements are enforceable under both the principles of contract law and the underlying protections afforded by the Constitution.

Enforceability and Breach of Agreement:

This affidavit, once executed by the Principal [redacted]) and the Attorney-in-Fact (DRACO & COMPANY), is legally enforceable and binding upon both parties, subject to the provisions established herein. Any act performed by DRACO & COMPANY within the scope of the granted powers shall be recognized as if performed directly by the Principal, carrying with it the full force and effect of law.

Should either party fail to perform their obligations as set forth in this Affidavit of Power of Attorney, or if they engage in actions that are outside the scope of their authority, such conduct may constitute a breach of agreement. In the event of a breach, the party who has not complied with the terms of the agreement may be held accountable under Common Law principles, and remedies may be pursued through appropriate legal means.

Legal and Common Law Remedies for Breach:

In the event of a breach of this affidavit or any wrongful act, the aggrieved party has the right to seek legal remedies. Under Common Law, remedies for breach of contract may include:

1. Damages: The injured party may seek monetary compensation to cover the loss or harm caused by the breach. This can include compensatory damages, punitive damages, and consequential damages, depending on the nature and extent of the breach.

2. Specific Performance: In cases where monetary compensation is insufficient or inadequate, the injured party may seek a court order for specific performance—requiring the breaching party to fulfill their obligations as originally agreed upon in the affidavit.

3. Injunctions: An injunction may be sought to prevent a party from continuing an action that constitutes a breach of the affidavit or otherwise harms the interests of the aggrieved party.

4. Rescission: If a breach is substantial or material, the injured party may seek rescission of the affidavit, effectively voiding the agreement and restoring the parties to their respective positions before the affidavit was executed.

5. Restitution: The injured party may also seek restitution, which involves the return of any property or value that was exchanged under the affidavit, effectively undoing the effects of the agreement.
